You’re invited!
Conservation International’s Metrics Lounge

Are you looking for a simple way to measure progress towards global, regional, or national conservation and development goals?

MEASURING THE CONNECTION BETWEEN NATURE AND PEOPLE

Date: Monday, November 17th
Time: 12 - 1:30 PM
Location: Conservation International’s Lounge, Exhibition area, next to the Dome

Come find out how one of the world’s largest conservation organizations, Conservation International (CI), is tracking metrics related to natural capital (biodiversity and ecosystems), environmental governance (policies and legislation), sustainable production (agriculture, fisheries, and extractives), and human well-being (livelihoods, food security, climate resilience, and access to clean water). Come for a step-by-step introduction to CI’s metrics framework, to see examples of metrics dashboards from several countries, or to discuss the role of metrics and dashboards more generally.
